PESKY BED BUGS

A MILLION REDBUGS. Just think, a 50c package of the new golden chemical P. D. Q. (Pesty Detergent Quinoline), is enough to make a quart and enough to kill a million bedbugs, no matter how large they may be, where they come from, their age, color or sex, and at the same time leave a coating on their eggs and prevent hatching.

CUT THIS OUT. This new chemical can be had at any first-class drug store. A 50-cent package makes a quart of P. D. Q., and will go farther than a barrel of old-fashioned bug killer. Don't let anybody impose upon your intelligence by offering you something else. Insist on what you ask for, then you'll have what doctors prescribe.

KILLS FLEAS ON DOGS. It's fun to see the fleas drop off your pet dog.

KILLS CHICKEN LICE. No use for your chickens to have lice. A 5c package mixed makes a gallon of chicken lice killer.

Your druggist has it, or can get it for you.

REPORTING CASUALTIES MOST DIFFICULT TASK

Promptness Almost Impossible.
Accuracy Insisted on—Lists
Checked and Rechecked.

With the American Army in France, Aug. 22.—The recent Marne fighting has illustrated sharply the difficulties in the prompt reporting of the casualties. The army authorities keenly realized the anxiety prevailing at home since this first extended action largely participated in by the American forces and the whole machinery of casualty reports has been worked to the limit within the basic rule of accuracy before speed.

The system of keeping track of every man of the American expeditionary forces is well organized, but it is gigantic. It radiates from the central record office where is kept the complete history of every officer and man and civilian worker.

Facts concerning every casualty are rushed by courier to the central record office, where a check is made against his name and a record to prevent confusion and to identify him. Then a message is prepared and checked back and then cabled to Washington, where the list of kin is notified and the list published.

The work is done as expeditiously as possible, and, were it not for battle conditions beyond human remedy, the American people might read each day's roll of honor the next day. In trench fighting and in small operations it is possible to make almost immediate casualty reports, but in a warfare of movement, involving large numbers and extended territory such as the Marne battle, the task becomes difficult and slow, despite the best efforts of the authorities.

Established Beyond Doubt. The regulations require that every report of killed, wounded or missing must be established beyond a doubt. Units moving forward for hours under heavy fire, losing men on the way, cannot pause to check casualties. These must come later from dressing stations, hospitals or burying parties operating in the wake of the advancing lines.

Frequently company, battalion, or even regimental records and reports are destroyed or lost in action. At Seicheprey a certain American unit was isolated for nearly two days by a heavy German barrage. Several members of the unit sacrificed their lives in an effort to penetrate the wall of fire. Finally a German raiding party captured and made off with the organization's records. On another occasion a statistical unit was bombed out of its position and its carefully prepared casualty reports were scattered over the landscape.

Again, replacement troops may be thrown into action with some organization being reformed for attack, the unit commander having no knowledge of who they are. Thus, if the records are lost or destroyed by shell fire or bombing, it becomes almost impossible to make accurate casualty reports for days, perhaps for weeks.

American wounded often find their way into French or British dressing stations and are sent on to French or British hospitals. They are carried on their own rolls as missing until finally they find their way back to their own units or are officially reported at home as missing.

With the assistance of trained experts, the authorities are constantly endeavoring to speed up casualty reports, but they are unwilling to sacrifice accuracy so that as far as possible needless pain and anxiety to the families and friends of the men may be avoided.

YOUTHS OVER EIGHTEEN TO ENTER STUDENTS' CORPS

Must Register Under Amended Selective Service Act—Forms Already Outlined.

Knoxville, Aug. 23.—(Special.)—Youths over 18 years of age will enter the students' army training corps at the University of Tennessee by voluntary induction and not by enlistment, according to a telegram received by President Ayres from the government committee on education and special training. The telegram reads:

"Students over 18 will enter the S. A. T. C. after registration date under amended selective service act. Entry by individual voluntary induction, not enlistment. This change in view of probable reduction of draft age to 18 and probable registration date about Sept. 10. Change in draft age involving 100,000 of men 18 to 21 earlier than previously estimated will require readjustment of military training plan and academic work. Regulations and suggestions sent soon as practicable except for changes necessitated by new legislation. Corps will be organized as already outlined. Training, advances and other supplies will be issued by committee direct. No regulations needed and must not be sent."

BULGARIANS PROMISED

END OF WAR SOON

Paris.—The number of Bulgarian deserters who crossed over to the allied lines diminished to 133 in July, whereas 204 deserted in June, says a Saloniki dispatch. This is said to be due to a statement made by Crown Prince Boris of Bulgaria, who, during a visit to Bulgarian forces in Macedonia some six weeks ago, told his soldiers he would soon rid them of their rifles and equipment.
